

Training

There are many skills involved in establishing and running a successful community radio station. We have professional trainers who will train your station staff and community members in:

- Radio Engineering (maintenance of equipment, technical training for station technicians)

- Radio Production (live mixing and broadcasting, audio editing software, creating jingles, recording in the field, producing a radio drama, producing a talk show)

- Station Management (designing a programming schedule, managing your team, encouraging and managing community participation, station objectives, decision-making, developing a sustainable financial model, advertising, developing on-air and off-air station policies)
